

CONQUEST

JUNE
1943

FOREWORD

THE battle of preparation, the fight for the right to be the new generation, the privilege of shouldering greater responsibility in meeting and solving the problems of a changing world—these are the struggles that always have been and still must be encountered by the youth of today.

Conflict engulfs the entire world in a swirling vortex of fear, want, sorrow, uncertainty, but to this graduating class of June, 1943, the conflict represents a challenge. With four years of preparation behind them, these young men and women, flushed with the warm glow of success, face the combat and meet it with courage undaunted.

IN their years of growing up, these young people learned not only those fundamental facts and processes so necessary to earn a living, but also that intangible something that matured them and made them accept more serious responsibility. They surmounted their momentary problems, vanquished their fears, mastered their emotions. All this they did in a changing world—a world, turbulent and distraught; a world that has felt the crushing blow of a tyrant's heel. They saw and wondered, but not for long. With the spirit of youth and the determination of patriotic Americans, they made themselves ready to conquer. They met each task as it came in preparation for the larger task that is to come. Some, in the vigorous resolution of youth, could not wait, but, even before graduation, answered the call to arms.

Graduation to this class offers new horizons to conquer and conquered they will be. Indomitable will, courage, and spirit insure it!

CLASS

ADVISERS

APPRECIATION

THE success of our class in its many activities has been the result not only of the enthusiasm and cooperation of the students, but also of the able guidance of Miss Olive M. Terhune and Mr. James P. Haupin. Through their foresight, earnestness, and perseverance, they have distinguished themselves as efficient leaders. We have always known them to be impartial in their judgment, considerate of others. All the activities of our class have been conducted democratically because of their efforts.

To them we express our appreciation because of their guidance and friendliness.

DEDICATION

TO YOU . . . gloriously serving your country in all the many branches of the armed forces of the United States, we dedicate this book. To you, valiantly protecting our homes and us; to you, fighting our battles throughout the far-flung fronts everywhere in the world; to you, simply and silently doing your duty that freedom shall not perish from the earth; and to you, conquering the forces of evil to preserve that way of life known to us as democracy; we salute you forever enshrined in the hall of our heroes, our heart.

Each and every one of you, in answering the call to defend his heritage, and the cry of his blood, has sacrificed something precious on the altar of war. All of you have left your home, loved ones, school, jobs, possibly giving up great opportunities that may never come again. All of you have willingly relinquished a happy, peaceful, normal existence for a foxhole in a strange foreign land. In short, you have given up a life so that that life may continue to exist.

Some of you may never return. Some of you may have given up more that you can ever regain. But whatever Fate may bring, be assured you will always be foremost in our thoughts. You will ever remain as we knew you, sincere, straightforward, the highest type of hero, he who bears his shield for kin and community.

MICHAEL MILAN

CONQUEST would be incomplete without mention of the classmate who was taken from us during his Sophomore year. Michael, sports enthusiast and all around good-fellow, promised to be one of the class workers. We deeply regret that his untimely death prevented us from knowing him better.

CONQUEST

Class History

Shivering Freshmen—957 of us! Yes, there we were, sitting in awe in the auditorium of Bloomfield High School examining our first program cards. Of our number, 300 were sent across the street to Park School for homerooms because our class was so large. After a few difficult weeks of milling around in a fog, bumping into Seniors and thinking they were teachers, bumping into teachers and thinking they were Seniors, swarming up the wrong stairs in true Freshman manner, waiting in line with a tray for a bottle of milk, and getting acquainted with detention, we finally settled down to our quiet life.

We certainly were brilliant that first year. We rated an average of twelve students on every high honor list. Although we collected no dues, we elected John Jordan as president, and Helen Hochstuhl as secretary-treasurer. We became acquainted with our advisers, Mr. Haupin and Miss Terhune. Our first dance was the Spring Leap Year Frolic. It was attended by most of the class and a few Sophomore hecklers. We all sat around in the balcony and watched the more advanced among us do the old "One-Two-Three-Close." The Stewed Prince announced the death of Bill "Man-Mountain" Brown-ing. The Upper Classmen decided to educate us to jive. Tommy Dorsey, Larry Clinton, and Glenn Miller were swamped by the avid autograph hounds in our midst. However, June found us very tired of being the underdogs. We looked forward to a blissful two months and in September—revenge!

But the Office had other plans. We were again the lowest class even though elevated to the rank of Sophomore, and our intended victims ran riot in the new Junior High. We were the first class to be eligible for graduation with the whole school system on a yearly basis. The new marking system of A, B, C, D, F, was installed. We discovered that detention and recall were the same thing. Our club activities increased. A National Honor Society was organized. Another innovation was the Sub-Deb Club. The state decided that we should have Health once a week and that chest X-rays should be taken once a year. The burning question was Wilkie or ? We elected new officers: John Jordon, as president; Dolores Janovic, vice-president; Peter Lally, secretary; Charlotte Olson, treasurer.

Our May dance—well, we don't talk about that. It was so warm that the band showed up in shorts. Our famous personages were gaining glory even then. Betty Luz was a Student Council Homeroom Representative; Shirley Kew, a Student Prints Homeroom Representative. Russell Law decided to take up the clarinet. Moose was just another hopeful on the fifth team; Ruth Leiss and Helen Hochstuhl, just another pair of girls in those horrible rust colored gym suits. The term ended with "Carmelita". We were glad when that year was over.

We were now full-fledged Upper Classmen! The woes and worries of our first two years had passed, and in their place came the serious business of electing class officers. John Helmke became our president; Duncan MacGilvray, vice-president; Audrey Clubb, secretary; and William Lown, treasurer. Bob Hester, Frank Muehlheuser, Kenny Miller, and Bubbles Leonard proved that the Junior Class was not lacking on the Gridiron. Thelma King won the National Sewing Contest, receiving a war bond and a three day stay at the Waldorf-Astoria. Then came the "big affair" of the Junior Year—the Junior Prom. Committees chosen included John Helmke, Audrey Clubb, John Jordan, Shirley Kew, Helen Hochstuhl, Duncan MacGilvray, Ruth Leiss, William Lown, Edward Talmadge, Charlotte Olson, Dolores Janovic, and Harry Newell. The Upper Montclair Women's Club became the scene of the Prom.

The untimely death of Mr. Poole, our principal, well-remembered for his interest in each individual student, deeply moved all of us.

As the end of our Junior Year hovered in sight, the Student Prints fell into our hands. Shirley Kew became Editor; Judith Hill, Assistant Editor; and Elizabeth Ward, Feature Editor. With the election of Betty Luz as president, the Student Council obtained a capable leader.

Nor did we lack in innovation; for, when June came, students poured over text books to prepare for those two-hour tests which were to make such a popular (?) debut.

CONQUEST

Class History

When exams and other worries (report cards) had gone and summer vacation was becoming a reality, we Juniors looked back upon an active year; then turned, and looked ahead, realizing we would be Seniors in September.

Many students looked forward to this the last year of the Class of '43. And with ample reason. Hadn't their first three years been dotted with brilliant successes?

The cast of "Nothing But the Truth", the Senior B production, included for the most part, members of the first Dramatic Club in the school's history. Howls are still heard when you mention the antics of lead John Helmke; Marian Courtney proved a talented heroine. Both were ably supported by John Jordan, Hope Morrison, Elizabeth Ward, Russell Law, Irma Sempier, Jack Piefke, Charlotte Olson, Marshall Warner, and Thelma King. The Bishop still "tweaks noses", and Ethel still "sings". Does Russell still read Esquire? Has Pie changed his sox? Comedy was the type for this potpourri gang, and they knew how to put it over.

It was nothing new for B. H. S. to take top honors in athletics. Of course, our Girls' Archery Team went right on winning laurels. Prize packages in the star-studded aggregation were Ruth Leiss, Helen Hochstuhl, Lois Rudd, Marian Rath, and Lelia Saul. (All of these are of our class. What are you going to do for an Archery Team, Miss Russell?)

After a decided slump, Bloomfield made a comeback to stir the cockles of a football fan's heart. Here too, almost the entire starting line-up will be leaving. How about it, Coach? Can you muster up another Moose? another Bubbles? another Hester? or a Hepple?

First! The real surprise was the winning of the tenth annual foil N. Y. U. team fencing title by defeating the supposedly incomparable Barringer. Leading the quartette was best-dressed Cy Nucci. Another great first won by a great class.

First! A patriotic first! Victory Corps. Aeronautics. Navigation. Global Geography. Refresher Math. Rope ladder, swings, mazes, eight-foot walls. All these, and more, were added with the installation of the new Victory Corps.

On the anniversary of the death of Mr. Poole, our class expressed their feeling by the simple memorial program that he would have loved.

Mr. Poole's was a hard job to fill. But we feel it has been well filled by Mr. Rice, who has helped us so much. Himself, a first, he has aided many of our firsts.

Well, here we are again. With all of these endeavors, our scholastic record has remained at a level bordering on the super-somethin'. Class-Genius, Walter Glomb, captured the first place in the local oratorical contest sponsored by the American Legion and had the privilege of representing B. H. S. in further contests. Second in this gab-fest was Judith Hill, a snappy slinger of the funny fables. "What you do speaks so loud . . ." That is certainly true of Editor Shirley Kew, who, after fainting, rallied to come in a brilliant third in that same contest. It is this spirit which has endowed the class with the power to be what it is.

As proof that this is a great class, look over the lists, the records. There is no one outstanding person in our make-up. There are many workers, imaginative wits, dreamers, thinkers, and leaders. It is no one outstanding personality, but rather a co-ordinated team work of the minds of many that gives the greatness that cannot be denied us.

We can't do everything first. We have been last, too. We shall be graduating soon; the last class to attend Park School; the last class under Mr. Poole; this very annual may be the last one published for some time.

We are proud of this annual on which so many people have worked so diligently. We are grateful for the help of Mr. Willever, on this, his first job supervising an annual. We are thankful for the always unerring taste and the original suggestions of Miss Brummerstedt.

We are most appreciative of the advice of Miss Terhune and Mr. Haupin, who were always willing and ever ready to aid and advise us.

We shall miss B. H. S., but it has taught us this: that we may be first, or we may be last, but we always will be willing to try our hands, to shape our own destinies. We may be first, or last, but we shall be—always—Class of '43.

CONQUEST

"NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH"

"Ten thousand dollars, a beautiful blond, and 'Nothing But the Truth'"—thus read one of the circulars that drew literally thousands (two or three at least) of curious students and parents away from their firesides and radios on December 11 and 12, 1942.

To refresh your memories, let me remind you that the action centered around Bob Bennett as he tried to tread the straight and narrow path in order to win $10,000 and the hand of his beloved Gwen Ralston. Just to make matters a little more complicated, Gwen proved to be the daughter of E. M. Ralston, the senior partner of Bob's firm. Bob's true friends (?), Dick Donnelly and Clarence Van Dusen, helped Bob on his truthful way by introducing into the Ralston household two flashy chorus girls, Mabel and Sabel Jackson.

What did it matter if a few feelings were hurt when the truth came to the fore? Ethel Clark was reduced to tears, Mrs. Ralston was white with rage, Bishop Doran became involved in a bond swindle, and Gwen was just baffled as Bob continued his march on the road to honesty.

Still, all the fun did not take place when the houselights were dimmed. Previews of coming attractions were supposed to be given to the grammar school children; so, the cast braved storms, laryngitis, and aching feet to fulfill their promise.

One day, the cast, all the different committee members, and two or three unidentified people who just wandered into the auditorium, were put to work using dust brushes to paint the scenery. Many a good skirt or suit went to the cleaners after that!

The committee members had their troubles, too. While we all know of the trials of Bob Bennett, few of us recall the tribulations of Roberta Hanson and her music committee as they tried to find an orchestra. Armed with the address of a prospective band, the committee trooped off to keep the appointment. Imagine their surprise to end up in front of a rather questionable tavern. Needless to say, that orchestra didn't get the job.

Remember those lovely posters put out by the art committee? Concluding an afternoon of gruelling work, art chairman Anne O'Donnell emerged with blue face and hands—attractive, but disconcerting.

The lights dimmed, the audience became quiet, and the curtain went up. Promptly the audience was greeted with the sight of Jack Piefke's orange socks! Various characters came and went, as the play proceeded on its merry way. Then Russell Law, seemingly bored with the action taking place around him, decided to read a magazine——Esquire! What he saw we can only guess, but the gestures and the ad-libs were really expressive.

On with the drama! Remember that clock that played such an important part in the background? Many may have wondered just how it managed to keep such good time. This was due to the constant presence of Bill Collier behind the scenery. Once, during the performance, Bill leaned against the scenery, and nearly went right through the wall onto the stage.

Aside from this, however, the play went along without mishap. Much credit is due to the stars, Marian Courtney and John Helmke, together with their splendid supporting cast, made up of Jack Piefke, John Jordan, Russell Law, Hope Morrison, Elizabeth Ward, Marshall Warner, Irma Sempier, Charlotte Olson, and Thelma King, for making "Nothing But The Truth" the success it was.

Behind the scenes, away from the glory and the footlights, were the various committees, all doing their part in the perfection of the play.

Much of the success was due to the fine direction of Miss V. M. Parsons, our coach, and to the able guidance of our class advisers, Miss Olive M. Terhune and Mr. James P. Haupin.

CONQUEST

Conquest

Dauntless, fearless, brave, we stand,
Ready and willing to serve our land,
Steadfast and sturdy, we're proud to say
Our forces grow stronger, day by day.

A trumpet's blare, a throbbing drum,
We need not these to spur us on.
No orator's words, no speaker's appeal
Will win a war of blood and steel.

As our classmates march to war
We realize now, as never before
That we'll never be "just kids" again,
The world needs us as women and men.

We've heard of Warsaw, China, Lydice,
We're determined it won't happen twice.
They who have suffered beyond compare
Entrust their future to us, who care.

We realize, too, that a war can't be won
In a trench, by a man with a gun.
The practical way to insure victory?
Planes in the sky, ships on the sea.

We know your needs, we shall not shirk;
Absenteeism won't spoil our work.
America, we know we're the ones
To stand behind the men with the guns . . .

We'll keep the wheels turning, we'll answer your call,
We'll produce tanks and planes till the dictators fall.
And when the war's over, we'll build a new world
With the flag of peace as our banner, unfurled.

We're here, America . . . full force,
Show us how to plot our course,
So that we will rise from grief and sorrow
To the Conquest of tomorrow.

CONQUEST

Class Prophecy

JUNE, 1953! The alarm clock rings, summoning us from the land of dreams into the land of reality. Dressed and breakfast over, we rush for the 8:15 for New York.

They say that old friends meet at Broadway and Forty-Second Street. It must be true, because as we emerge from Grand Central Station we see John Buffington, Marie Alvine, Bettie Parker, Jack Moore, and Junellen Hawthorne, hurrying on their various missions.

On the way to work we stop to buy "The New Yorker" and note that it is edited by Shirley Kew. Dashing down the street in a last minute rush, we pass the famous shoe store that specializes in odd-sized shoes, owned and operated by Ann Ferguson. Next door to Ann is the Doris Stead Salon de Charme.

Going up in the elevator, we are pleasantly surprised to meet Betty Luz, who is now an executive in an advertising firm. Near Betty stand Violet Richards and Ellen MacFadyen who are now both successful stenographers working for Clifford Hall, a well known electrical engineer. Bill, as we know him, has offices on the tenth floor of the same building.

The elevator operator informs us that we have reached the fourteenth floor, our destination. We leave the car and proceed down the hall. To our dismay, the boss tells us his niece is in town, and would like to see some of the more interesting scenes. So, half an hour later we set out on our tour of inspection.

Our first stop is at Arnold Constable's, where we meet Annabelle Schenk, the sportswear buyer, who is rushing about the store with an armful of the new fall clothes. She directs us to the Sports Department, where Ruth Leiss is modeling the latest styles.

Out on the avenue again we head toward the Art Museum which features as its main exhibit some of John Jordan's dynamic murals. In the lecture room, Roberta Hanson is explaining Einstein's Theory of Relativity.

At Madison Square Garden, Helen Hochstuhl is competing in an archery tournament. After this, William Hunter, the light weight champion, will challenge any able-bodied man in the audience.

Leaving the garden, we decide to dine at the Hotel New Yorker. Here we see the jitterbug team of Shirley Burgess and Jimmie Onove starring in the floor show. At the next table Gloria Dispenziere, New York's best dressed woman, is dining with Eleanor Riker. Several couples are enjoying the soft dinner music played by Russ Law's orchestra, with Arthur Astorino featured at the piano. We wave to Jeanne Finnerty and Bob Hester as they dance by to the strains of a dreamy waltz. Autograph hounds are continuously bothering the former All-American fullback, now the leading professional player of the football world, Frank Muehlheuser.

After finishing our luncheon, we decide to go down to the theater district. Here it is interesting to see that Hope Morrison, only recently returned from her Hollywood successes, is starring in one of New York's most popular plays. She is supported by Claire Cockefair and Stanley Dalley. Further on, we pass a marquee announcing the new sensation "Back With the Breeze", written by Marian Courtney, produced by Brian Sanders, the music written and directed by Bevis Pickerell, and the costumes designed by Thelma King. This play stars Charlotte Olson in the greatest triumph of her career. As we pass the Metropolitan Opera House, we notice that Rosemary Monteiro and Agnes Clark have the leading roles in "La Traviata".

Newsboys shouting wildly, "Extra, Extra!" next claim our attention. We buy a New York Herald Tribune, and notice that Judith Hill is one of the editors. Scanning the front page rapidly, we discover the reason for the excitement. There has been a huge explosion at the Robert Price Chemical Laboratories. An experiment being performed by the renowned woman chemist, Marcella Zurski, had reacted too violently. She wasn't seriously hurt, but was treated for shock by Nancy Richmond and Irene Butler, registered nurses. Patricia Duggan, head of the Dietetic Department, also suffered from shock. Bob Sandiford, ace photographer of the New York Herald Tribune, had been able to obtain many action pictures.

We continue our stroll until we come to Dorothy Koval's Soda Shoppe. There we meet and speak to Marilyn Bender, the famous artist and illustrator for many leading magazines. She is with Jean McVean, now a language professor at N. Y. U.

Pushing and shoving, we force an entrance into a subway train headed for the Polo Grounds, where an exhibition game between the New York Yankees and New York Giants is being played. The teams are managed by Chuck Keenoy and Bill Murphy respectively. Betty Dynan, world famous woman sports reporter, and Marshall Warner, writer of a well-known sports column and permanent member of the "Information, Please" staff of experts, are up in the press box covering the game for their rival papers. The governor of New Jersey, Walter L. Glomb, is also on hand to throw out the first ball.

After the game, we wander around for a little while, just window shopping, until finally, tiring of the hot busy streets, we decide to go to the park. This park is under the direction of Thomas Lawson who trained with the Forest Rangers. Wandering among the beautiful gardens, we run into James Bain who tells us that he owns a fleet of trucks. Over by the lake we see Admirals Peter Lally and Robert Klump watching some children sail their boats. We mention the fact that we are sight-seeing and they tell us not to miss the gun collection exhibited at the Public Library. This collection of guns, the largest in the United States, belongs to Harry Newell, who is now a successful mechanical engineer.

On our way to the Library, we meet Kay Brown and Gladys Raemsch on their way to the train. Kay is now a chemist in a hospital and Gladys tells us that she works with Jack Gesell, as they are both engineers.

Just as we leave Kay and Gladys, Margie Wiedlich comes walking towards us. She tells us that since her release from the Marine Corps Reserve she has secured a position in the American Insurance Company. Margie informs us that Peg Walker has been advancing steadily in her career as head buyer at Altman's and that June Armstrong has a wonderful business as a dressmaker. As a closing remark, she says that the Theatre Guild is reviving "Nothing But the Truth" with John Helmke in the leading role.

The hour grows late as we return to the office, but soon we arrive. The boss' niece tells us that she enjoyed the day immensely, and thanks us for our help, asking if there was anything that she could do to repay us. We decline her offer, and go away thinking how pleasant it is to renew old acquaintances.

FOOTBALL

Under the able guidance of Coach Foley, the Freshman team of '39 has turned into one of the hardest hitting, fastest running teams ever to be seen in these sections. Only after a grueling schedule did the boys realize the possibilities of being State Champions. Many of you know how we outpointed East Orange and Phillipsburg only to be called Northern New Jersey Co-Champions; and how, after endangering our own reputation of Northern New Jersey's, we journeyed to Collingswood to show them what an all-round team could do. Such a team deserves much praise.

The squad started the past season with a favorable win over East Side, and after a 0-0 impasse with Belleville, the Bengals started roaring. Paced by Captain Bob Piefke, the boys romped past a South Side, Jefferson and a supposedly strong Dickinson. The remainder of the schedule found the Bengals on top by impressive scores. Only after Montclair succumbed by the score of 13-0 did our boys consider themselves a championship team.

At the beginning of the season, the line was considered the cog in our team; but, supported by Block Buster Leonard and fast charging Don Hepple, it became the main stay of the Bengals. But all the work is not done by the line, and in the scoring department Frank Muehlheuser, Ken Miller and Bob Hester were often called on to produce most of those touchdowns. Of course, there were the subs, Robert Sandiford, Lou Goehry, Malcome Boone, who could be relied upon in any spot. These boys formed the backbone of the Championship Bengal Tigers of 1942.

BASKETBALL

Down through the four years that we have cheered the basketball teams to victory, we have not seen a state championship, but Coach Foley has given us something to be proud of, something which we will always remember—four squads that have taken defeats along with victories as B. H. S. teams always have, with good sportsmanship.

The basketball team during our Freshman, Sophomore, and Junior years, carried on the tradition of keeping B. H. S. close to the top.

During our Junior year the names of several of our classmen came into the limelight.

At the start of the last year for the class of '43 the basketball team was uncaptained, but Ed McWhood soon took over this honor.

The Bengal cagers started a very promising season with four straight victories. Then came the vicissitudes, for the team beat their stronger adversaries and lost to the weaker combines. The squad ended with nine wins out of sixteen starts.

Certainly the best game of the season was the traditional scrap with Glen Ridge. This tilt was exciting until the last gun, the Bengals finally winning in the last few moments, 44—42.

Showing outstanding ability over the season were: the set shot artist and constant scorer, Don Baldyga; the team's high scorer and very able captain, Ed McWhood; Jim Onove, Bob Bergman, Frank Garnevicus, Victor Kapchuck, and Ken Miller. Well known to us, and one also to be remembered for his all-around playing is Jack Bruce of the class of '44.

FENCING

Fencing had not been a popular sport in Bloomfield High School when our class came into being. But ever since its organization, the fencers have striven toward bigger and better teams. Their trials were rewarded in the fact that every year they won more meets and were approaching a championship.

In our Junior and Senior years, the only member of the class to receive a varsity letter in this sport has been Cyrus Nucci.

During the 1941-42 season the team made its best record in many years. They won 10 meets, dropping only 3, and came in second in the state.

As we became Seniors, little did we realize what the fencers were to accomplish in this, our final year. The Varsity Team was composed of Dick Heeren and Fred Seufert of February '43, and Cy Nucci. Little was publicized concerning the efforts of the Bengal foilers as they swept through their competitors without a loss. One of their proudest achievements was the toppling of Barringer's 94 game winning streak. Then came the yearly event that they had been waiting for—the N. Y. U. Tourney. Barringer had taken this honor the year before; therefore our hopes were high, for we had trampled the Big Blue during the regular season. Bloomfield and Barringer finally met in the deciding match for the title. Again the Bengal fencers were victorious! The fencing team had now proved itself to be an outstanding team in Bloomfield High by becoming the Metropolitan champion and annexing another trophy for B.H.S.

Mr. Madden, the faculty adviser, and Mr. Harry Boutsikaris, the coach, deserve much credit for their part in aiding the team through its most successful season. Mr. Boutsikaris is one of the outstanding fencers in the country.

CONQUEST

TRACK

The Bloomfield High School track teams have won the admiration and respect of the high schools of the state. True we have not the superior squads, but we afford keen competition to all opponents.

In the past Mr. Spencer C. Wooley took the position of coaching the teams, but has since entered the Army. Mr. Joseph Ramo will now assume the responsibility of turning out Bengal track squads.

Mr. Wooley started the 1942 season with only a few veterans, but in spite of that handicap, the boys made a fine showing.

The best known person on the varsity track team is Walter "Bubbles" Leonard of football fame. Bubbles has set records in both the shot-put and discus.

Because of the rapidity with which track is becoming a popular sport, a quarter-mile track, with all necessary equipment, has been added to Foley Field.

GOLF

First started as a club, the golfers were made a team by the Athletic Association two years after their incipience.

The team has kept up a better than average record over the period of years.

In its 1942 season the team placed fifth in a tournament held at Asbury Park. Although they were not on top, considering the number of opponents, this was an honored position.

Seniors that have helped and will continue to help the squad on to victory are Vic Kapchuck and Don Baldyga of the basketball squad and Bill Quinn, the manager of last year's team.

The very able coach of the team is Mr. Arthur Bauer. He has been with the squad as coach for some time, and in his own right is an accomplished golfer.

TENNIS

With only one letterman returning and with the usual stiff competition, the hopes of a successful season in 1943 were low. Only a few Seniors were on the squad, namely: Duncan MacGilvray and David Smith.

Last year's squad had a disappointing season, winning one and losing three to tough opponents. Paul Gilbert, who is the captain and only returning letterman, will have to carry alone the load of the team this season. Mr. Cabot Kendall is the coach.

SWIMMING

Not much is said about the Bloomfield High School Swimming Squad because of the simple reason not much is known of them. But among the dozen or so men on the team you will find a spirit which is unquenchable even though the team may be losing.

Many of the graduating Seniors have been out for the team in the past two seasons, among them being Richard Pittenger, Marvin Schondorf, Duncan MacGilvray, Russell Tomlinson, and Larry Weiss.

Although no championship has as yet come to Bloomfield by way of the swimming team, it may well be expected by next year, as the backbone of this year's team was made up of Sophomores and Juniors. Mr. Ramo, the coach, has great hopes for the coming season for the Victory Corps may produce many good swimmers.

BASEBALL

A fairly strong team was put forth by the Bengals last year placing 13th in the state ratings. Only losing by close scores to superior teams at the end of the season, Bloomfield showed that it had improved much from the first few games.

The main problem of the coming season will be the hurlers although some may crop up by way of the under classes. This year Mr. Gerald Bonavita will be assistant coach. Having helped the football and basketball teams to strong finishes, he is expected to do so with baseball. Although in the past few years no appreciable star like Hank Borowy has been graduated from Bloomfield High, many of our Seniors could possibly carry on in the diamond sport.

Chuck Keenoy and Jim Onove held down the right field and center field positions respectively while Ed McWhood was star pitcher. (Ed will not be with us this season for he is in the Navy.) Jack Moore also played center field, alternating with Onove.

GIRLS' ATHLETICS

SENIOR AND JUNIOR GYM TEAMS

In 1914 the Senior Gym Team was started. Fifty girls came for the tryouts, twenty of whom were able to fulfill the requirements. Miss Russell now observes the girls in the gym class and carefully chooses those who have the ability to do the work. Those on the Senior Gym team wear red and gray suits, while the others wear all gray uniforms.

Ten years later the Junior Gym Team began. When a girl of the Junior Gym Team proves that she is able to do more advanced work, she is promoted to the Senior Gym Team. The work of the Junior Gym Team deals mainly with the ropes and parallels. The other team specializes in exercises on the parallels and rings.

ON THE PYRAMID: Marion Rath.

ON THE PARALLELS: Shirley Burgess, Helen Hochstuhl, Lois Rudd, Dorothy Olsen, Nancy Veneziano.

AT ENDS: Junellen Hawthorne, Edna Butler, Audrey Callahan, Antoinette Entile.

IN FRONT: Ruth Leiss, Jean MacGilvray, Shirley Fleissner.

TOP ROW: Jay Brown, Phyllis Hall, Lois Rudd, Lelia Saul, Alice Falardeau.
KNEELING: Marian Rath, Jeanne Finnerty, Doris Stead, Junellen Hawthorne, Ann Bragle, Virginia Saporito, Joan Antoinette, Lois Walker, Shirley Derrick, Violet Corragio.

ARCHERY

Under the expert supervision of Miss Edith Russell, the Girls' Archery Team has steadily climbed upward. Since 1937, when Bloomfield High School inaugurated this sport, the team has won many tournaments. It now stands at the top of the list.

As in other sports, a great deal of practice is required for perfect results. In the winter the team occupies the girls' gym two days in the week. During the spring they shoot at Foley Field.

The team in 1942 took first, second and fourth individual places in the National High School Championship.

Two of our Seniors have the duties of captain and manager: Lois Rudd acting as captain; and Lelia Saul, as manager. There are thirteen archers who are graduating. They are: Lois Rudd, Lelia Saul, Doris Stead, Shirley Burgess, Jeanne Finnerty, Dorothy Olsen, Junellen Hawthorne, Helen Hochstuhl, Ruth Leiss, Marian Rath, Nancy Richmond, Annabelle Schenk and Shirley Fleissner.

Ruth Leiss has won Eastern Junior Champion, 1941; Eastern High School Champion, 1942; Metropolitan Junior Champion, 1941; New Jersey State Junior Champion, 1941.

BASKETBALL

Each fall the girls of B. H. S. compete in the interclass tournaments. Each team tries hard to win and receive the silver basketballs which are awarded the victors.

This year we had two Senior B teams because there were so many who wished to participate in this sport. The Senior A team, graduated in January, 1943, took first place, captained by Shirley Renard. The Senior B team which took second place was captained by Junellen Hawthorne. Those on the team were Doris Stead, Helen Hochstuhl, Lois Rudd, Audrey Callahan, Ruth Leiss, Victoria Gasperine, Nancy Richmond, Lelia Saul, and Lillian Gardner.

The other Senior B team was composed of Isabelle Haesler, Dorothy Koval, Marcella Zurski, Mary Mushelski, Kathleen McAllister, Marie Alvine, June Gauerke, and Elizabeth Tabor.
